The Imperial War Museum is unique in its coverage of conflicts, especially those involving Britain and the Commonwealth, from the First World War to the present day. It seeks to provide for, and to encourage, the study and understanding of the history of modern war and “war-time experience”. It is proud to be regarded as one of the essential sights of London. The Museum spans a huge range of activities not only at its main London location but also at its four further branches: the Churchill Museum and Cabinet War Rooms in Whitehall, the historic ship HMS Belfast, moored in the Pool of London, Imperial War Museum Duxford near Cambridge, and Imperial War Museum North in Trafford. For further information, visit www.iwm.org.uk The National Civil War Museum is proud to have the Imperial War Museum (“IWM”) as a member of our Advisory Council. The IWM’s vast experience in discussing military history and its greater social ramifications, as well as their experience in portraying often contentious subject matter in an unbiased manner, provides a superb resource when dealing with similar issues in the American Civil War era.
